Full Treatment. Goal - prolong life by all medically effective means

Remind the patient that these orders only pertain to emergency situations. That their care providers will take all reasonable measures to sustain their life, but considering their health status, such measures may or may not be successful or may result in additional discomfort. Comfort focused treatment should always be provided. Discuss “Other Instructions”, for example, this might include a trial period of treatments to determine if the patient is improving. Without this notation, the patient should understand that they may be on life support indefinitely or, if a treatment is found not to be of benefit, it may be withdrawn.

Selective Treatment. Goal – treat medical conditions as directed below:

Treatment may include IV antibiotics, IV fluids and cardiac monitor, as indicated. Use other medical treatments that do not require intubation, advanced airway interventions or mechanical ventilation. The use of noninvasive positive airway pressure and hospital transfer as indicted, but generally, avoid ICU. Be sure to explain what the treatments mentioned involve, the limitations of these treatments and the implications this choice may have for the patient’s longevity and/or quality of life. Discuss “Other Instructions” that might include a trial period or avoidance of specific treatments, such as kidney dialysis, etc.

Comfort Focused Treatment. Goal – maximize comfort through symptom management.

All efforts to provide comfort and relieve pain by any route are to be taken while maintaining the patient’s dignity. Food and fluid may be offered by mouth. Oxygen, suction and manual treatment of airway obstruction may be used. The patient should not be transferred unless comfort cannot be met at their current location. The patient should NOT be admitted to ICU.

Be sure to tell the patient that they may change these options at any time by requesting completion of a new POLST.
